

MARCONI PLANT IS CLOSED DOWN BY GOVERNMENT

Siasconset Station Is Charged With Having Violated Neutrality Proclamation.

ASKS FOR INJUNCTION.

President of Company Questions Right of Navy to Take Action.

At noon to-day the Marconi wireless station at Siasconset, Mass., was closed to all business when Ensign E. B. Nixon, Naval Censor at the station, read to Manager J. Cowden the order of Secretary of the Navy Daniels forbidding the transmission of messages.

The original plan of the Marconi Company was to offer resistance to Secretary Daniels' order, and with that view in mind President Griggs wired Manager Cowden last night to ask Ensign Nixon when he read the order if the navy man was prepared to back up the order by force. Mr. Griggs' instructions were rescinded this morning and Manager Cowden did not parley with Ensign Nixon, but immediately closed the station.

This action was taken by the Government because of a message transmitted from the British cruiser Suffolk as she was lying off Ambrose Channel three weeks ago, to a New York commission merchant, asking him to forward supplies and newspapers to the vessel. The Navy Department considered this an unauthorized act and demanded an explanation from the Marconi Company. The company was given until noon to-day to forward the explanation to Washington, but it was not forthcoming.

Anticipating the Government's action, John W. Griggs, President of the Marconi Company of America and general counsel for the company, yesterday filed application in the Federal Court for an injunction restraining the Government from carrying out the order of Secretary Daniels. Argument on the injunction probably will be made on Oct. 7. The injunction also covers the Government's consignment at the Siasconset station of the Marconi system. The company asks the Court to restrain the Navy Department from censoring messages transmitted through the Siasconset plant.

In a statement issued to-day Mr. Griggs says that the action of Secretary Daniels amounts to an unlawful confiscation of private property and is against the Federal Constitution's provisions.

"In the first place," said Mr. Griggs, "the law does not charge the Secretary of the Navy with supervision over wireless plants. That power is conferred on the Secretary of Commerce."

"Wireless companies are required by these acts to receive messages from any vessel carrying wireless apparatus, and, under that requirement, were bound to receive the message."

from the Suffolk which has caused all the trouble. We are also prohibited from disclosing the contents of any messages sent or received to any outsider, yet the Navy Department, through its censors, violates this.

The Siasconset station is the most powerful in the Marconi system and its earning capacity is about $5,000 a month. During the past two months its receipts have increased.

In addition to the injunction proceedings already instituted, Mr. Griggs stated to-day that he was considering a suit against the Government for damages.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Threats of court proceedings did not alter the order of Secretary Daniels for the closing of the Siasconset station. Attorney-General Gregory has in hand the question of whether a court can enjoin the President. Administration officials believe the President, as Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, may close the station.
